
2024-25 ACADEMIC COURSES

BMG 226 : TRANSPORTATION AND LOGISTICS

In this course, students learn how transportation moves freight, information, and finances through the global supply chain. Since transportation expense often represents one of the largest single costs faced by a company, students learn how transportation strategy is created and implemented. Finally, they learn about the latest innovations, current security issues, and recent sustainability efforts in the freight transportation industry. The title of this course was previously Transportation Management. Level I Prerequisite: Academic Reading and Writing Levels of 6
